Local block is used for decreasing the scope of a local variable. It means by using the local block we can destory a local variable memory immediatly after its usage is completed.